Lesson D, Exercise 2 [p. 123]

Level 1, Track 176

Amanda My birthday is July fourteenth, and I always celebrate my birthday with my friends and family. I'm sixteen years old now, and on my last birthday, my parents gave me a "Sweet Sixteen" party. That's a party a lot of girls have when they turn sixteen. I made a guest list, and my parents sent the invitations. My mom and I decorated the room and planned a special menu of pizza, ice cream, and, of course, cake. My mom baked a big chocolate cake with "Happy Birthday, Amanda!" on it. Everybody sang "Happy Birthday" to me. We had the party at my house, and fourteen of my friends came. Some of their mothers even came! We played music, danced, and sang karaoke. My mom and dad gave me a cool gift. It was a new camera. It was great – I took photos of my friends and then posted them online for my friends to see. I'm not going to have a party for my next birthday – my seventeenth – but I am going to have one for my eighteenth birthday!
